However, you still use a raster editor with a very limited color palette, and if you want to add more color, you have to purchase separate software. The best part about Photoshop Elements is that it can do more things than Photoshop, so you can spend your time creating assets and photographs that will truly distinguish you. When you find something that works, you can even save it and apply it to all your future photos! ## Getting Around in Photoshop Photoshop has a very basic learning curve with each new release. 588 S.W.2d 410, 413 (Tex. Crim. App. 1979) (orig. proceeding); Smith v. State, 897 S.W.2d 839, 841 (Tex. Crim. App. 1995). A trial court has no discretion to dismiss a complaint under article 32.01 unless it is timely filed. See Aguilar, 740 S.W.2d at 354-55; Vasquez, 30 S.W.3d at 35; Brockenshire, 926 S.W.2d at 79. In his first issue on appeal, appellant contends that the trial court did not have jurisdiction under article 32.01 because the complaint filed by the complainant on August 10, 2003, was filed more than five days after the transaction upon which the complaint is based. Appellant argues that this is an open-ended charge, the earliest of which was well before the date of the transaction. At the time of the transaction, appellant was a federal prisoner who had been previously released on bail. In Brockenshire, the court of criminal appeals considered whether article 32.01 required that a person arrested for the offense be actually in custody. 926 S.W.2d at 79. The court of criminal appeals rejected the holding in the complaint that a complaint could be filed only if the accused was actually being restrained when the complaint was filed because the charge at issue was open-ended. Id. The court of criminal appeals held that article 32.01 "requires only that the complaint be filed in time to enable the courts to take some action before the expiration of the statutory period." Id.

at 79-80. The court of criminal appeals has applied Brockenshire to hold that a timely filed complaint could be dismissed if the charges are not sufficiently specific to permit the trial court to proceed to adjudication. See Vasquez, 30 S.W.3d at 35. Article 32.01 provides that "if the defendant is to be arraigned on a felony charge, the complaint against him shall be filed not later than five days prior to the commencement of trial." Tex. Code Crim.
